Bridget O'Loughlin focuses her practice on litigation and represents corporate and institutional clients in a wide variety of business litigation matters. With more than two decades spent serving the city of Philadelphia, Bridget brings a unique perspective in fulfilling her clients' objectives.

In addition, Bridget currently sits as an arbitrator for the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas.

Prior to joining Stradley Ronon, Bridget served as Philadelphia assistant city solicitor, where her responsibilities included drafting pleadings, motions and briefs, researching legal issues, representing the city of Philadelphia at arbitrations, taking and defending depositions, and negotiating settlements.

Bridget previously spent 21 years as a parole officer in the First Judicial District of Philadelphia Monitored Supervision Program, where she testified weekly in the Criminal Court, Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas, regarding defendants' progress. She also spent five years coordinating community service, drug treatment and house arrest programs for defendants in the Intermediate Punishment Program.

Community Impact

Passionate about community involvement, Bridget is a regular volunteer at MANNA, where she works to help provide proper nutrition for people with serious illnesses. Bridget also spent six years as a weekly volunteer at the William Way LGBT Community Center in Philadelphia.
