Trademarks, Right of Publicity, and the Emerging Trend to Protect Celebrity Identity

May 11, 2026

The rapid onset of generative artificial intelligence (AI) — particularly its ability to create hyper-realistic deepfakes and appropriate the image, voice, mannerisms and likeness of celebrities and other public figures (collectively, NIL), sometimes for nefarious or unauthorized purposes —...

When It Comes to Copyright Law, AI Is Like a Camera

May 5, 2025

Even in its relatively nascent form, artificial intelligence, or AI, is already running headlong into multiple conflicts with existing copyright law. One or the other is going to have to blink, to change and adapt, and it's not going...
